

I'm Ivan Bunkum and standing for re-election to the parish council. I'm 40 years old, I am married to Sarah and we have three children. My family have lived and worked at Trewashford farm for three generations having moved here from St Ive in 1966.

I believe Pillaton is a wonderful, beautiful and fun place to live. We are very fortunate to have such a diverse and good natured community with a shared ethos of getting involved and helping where we can. I see the Parish council as an important foundation for the running of the village which in turn enables our wide tapestry of clubs and village events as well as maintaining and shaping the direction of the village. I wish to continue serving the parish and do so with a "what can I do to help" approach. My aim is to keep Pillaton a special place for today and for generations to come.
