

Statistics for Pillaton's website

Patrick McClaughry, 1 Sep 25

Over the last 30 days there were 168 'sessions' - occasions when someone visited the website - and 125 'unique visitors' - a figure that excludes repeat visits by the same person (more accurately, the same device).

This chart shows how the number of sessions has varied over the course of this calendar year.

I can't explain the ups and downs. Perhaps the important point is that the website attracts a steady flow of visits.

This chart shows how visitors over the last 30 days found their way to the website. The great majority came 'directly' (users typing the website address) or via Google.

This chart shows which pages people visited over the last 90 days. The homepage comes top, followed by the News page, then the Notices, Gallery and Calendar pages, with Parish Council, Activities and Amenities pages bringing up the rear. (Remaining pages not shown.) This pattern does vary.
